W. Evans Buchanan, builder of Lakewood Homes in Greenbelt, presents the trophy for the youngest runner entered to finish the 9 mile road race in the Labor Day festival. 16 year old Eddie Raduazo, former Greenbelt Jr. High student, finished 25th in the grueling race which featured track stars from 6 eastern states. Lakewood Homes sponsored the event in cooperation with the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival.

Women Voters

The League of Women Voters of Prince Georges County has opened a campaign urging citizens to register as voters before the Nov. 4 election. Mrs. Homer Schamp, Jr., the league's voter service chairman, said that the campaign will seek to get people to register prior to the closing of the registration books Sept. 22.

Mrs. Schamp said that up until the Sept. 22 closing date, citizens may register at the County Service Building in Hyattsville Tuesday and Friday from 6 to 9 p.m., and at the Court House at Upper Marlboro Monday thru Friday during the day. Registrations will be conducted Sept. 16 in Greenbelt. (See ad, Page 3.)

Non-partisan information on all Prince Georges County candidates for governor, senate, congress, house of delegates, board of county commissioners and other offices will be available in the Voters Guide to be published Sept. 15, according to Mrs. Schamp. Copies may be requested from Mrs. William Sulzbacher at WE. 5-6672.

Greenbelt Resident Elected Treasurer

Smith is presently employed as Administrative Assistant to the Administrator of Public Works for Prince Georges County and is in charge of all Special Improvement District's and Special Taxing Areas in the county. He holds a Bachelor of Science Degree from the University of Maryland and is completing his final year of studies at the University of Maryland School of Law in Baltimore.

Commissioner and Mrs. Lastner attended the County Engineers Association Convention on Aug. 22 and the County Commissioners Association Convention on Aug. 23.

City Seeks GHI Aid On Parking Problems

A complete new approach to the problem of lack of parking space in the service courts of GHI homes was proposed to the city council by City Manager Charles McDonald at the regular council meeting on Monday, Sept. 8. He noted that since it was basically a matter of GHI serving its members, the parking problem should be solved jointly by the GHI board and the council.

The manager pointed out that part of the problem was that some GHI residents both rented garages and insisted on retaining parking space in the courts. Since GHI controls the rental of the garages and has a responsibility to assure at least one parking space for each GHI family, the housing corporations is in a better position to control the situation. GHI also owns land which could be converted by the city into additional parking space.

McDonald said that the city is quite willing to maintain the court parking areas but that the council should admit that it was a mistake to take over the areas from GHI under an agreement both to "control" as well as to maintain them. He said he did not feel it was proper for the city to have to threaten residents with arrest and a possible fine in order to maintain parking space for all residents.

The council agreed that GHI should be contacted and urged to consider it a mutual problem. It was felt that one solution might be to make the assignment of parking space part of the GHI contract where necessary.

Municipal Building To Be On City Land

The site of the proposed new city offices building goes round and round the town, and where she'll stop, nobody knows—at least not the city council. The latest development at the regular council meeting on Monday, Sept. 8, is that no money will be spent on the purchase of land for a building site.

Three possible sites, all owned by the city, are now under consideration. Councilman Ben Goldfaden suggested that the city build its offices right onto the swimming pool. The bath house section could serve as one of two wings of the building with a two-story building in the center.

City Manager Charles McDonald however, felt that this combination is not desirable and that noise from the pool in the summer would distract city workers. He was more favorable to another site suggested by Goldfaden. This would be directly behind the statue on the mall, where the city has an area of land about 30 by 90.

McDonald also had no objection despite its distance from the center, to the original site adjacent to the new firehouse near St. Hugh's, which is strongly favored by Councilman Alan Kistler. The manager also suggested that the council should consider setting a limitation of $85,000 on each at the proposed new municipal buildings, at least for immediate construction plans. This would make it unnecessary to go to the citizens to float a bond issue.

County Recreation

The 1958-59 Teen Club program will open the weekend of Oct. 3-4, with an In-Service Training program for all Teen Club Directors and Teen Club Chairmen scheduled for Sept. 29. Communities wishing to conduct Teen Clubs this year have submitted requests for assistance to the County Recreation Department which provides a trained recreation leader to work with the teen-agers and the adults in the community. Area Supervisors will meet with all community groups in the next two weeks to make plans for the coming year. It is expected that about forty Teen Clubs for Junior and Senior high young people will be conducted.

The fall session of recreational classes for children will get under way the first week of Oct. Registration for classes will be held at the various schools where classes will be conducted Sept. 29 to Oct. 4, with classes starting the following week. Specific information on classes to be held and locations will be announced later. Instruction in such recreational activities as ballet, tap dancing, Hawaiian dance, tumbling, folk dancing, dramatics and art will be given on Saturday mornings and after school on week days.

Local Youngsters Protest to City Council on Skating Ban in School

by Russell Greenbaum

Nearly 50 teenagers crammed into the city council meeting room Monday night, September 8, to petition the council at its regular meeting to continue the Friday night roller skating program at the Center School (the city-owned community building.) Skating has been ended at the request of the county board of education, which is buying the building for $260,000. Part of this money will be used to construct a new youth center building.

The county board maintains that the school's gymnasium floor is being seriously damaged by the skating and that another season of this would make it necessary to install a new floor, adding to the cost of the building. However, the teenagers had the satisfaction of hearing a promise from the council to do everything it could to persuade the school board to allow the continuation of skating even if it cost the city some money.

The junior pressure group was a little abashed at first, and for a time it looked as if no one was going to get up and state to the council why they had come. The chief spokesman for the group, although it required a little urging from her colleagues and the council, turned out to be Betsy Van Ormer, a pretty 12-year-old, who once she got started found she had plenty to say to the council.

Betsy described how popular the skating program had become, and argued that it was the mainstay for Friday night for the teenagers in the community, and that they would be forced to travel to Bladensburg for their skating where the charge was a dollar.

The council was sympathetic, agreed that the skating was popular and said that it hated to see it discontinued. Councilman Ben Goldfaden suggested that further discussion could be held with the school board to persuade them to reconsider, and the matter of the cost of refinishing or replacing the floor raised.

City Manager Charles McDonald noted that the school board maintenance man had seen the floor at its worst condition and that it had been recently refinished and was in better shape. In fact, he said that he and Warren Leddick, the recreation director, had not yet scheduled a substitute program for Friday night in the hope that further talks with the school board might lead to a resumption of skating.

Another prominent spokesman for the group, Dennis Isely, proposed that clamp-on skates be prohibited since these chew up the floor far more than shoe skates, which most Greenbelt skaters use. Betsy also brought out that skating was not the only cause of damage to the floor but that a leak in the roof had also warped and damaged the floor. McDonald admitted that this was a good point, although it has not caused the major damage.

The manager explained that skating causes gradual permanent damage. Since the floor is not designed to take skating, the constant vibration loosens the boards and the nails. However, he indicated that there was doubt in his mind whether another season of skating would cause much more serious damage to the floor. Isely said the boys would volunteer to work on the floor to help cut the cost of repairing it.

The youngsters, who were obviously up on the latest theories of juvenile delinquency, stressed that the skating program kept them off the streets, out of mischief, and, as Betsy put it, not playing "all sorts of pranks." The council, however, noted that if skating had to be stopped, either arrangements might be made to permit them to attend the Bladensburg rink at a special price or some other program would be arranged for Friday night. All other recreation activities will continue in the Center School building until June.

One other problem disturbed Betsy. She said she understood from Warren Leddick that the youth group would have to make a choice in the youth center building between a skating rink and a dance pavillion and club rooms. Acting Mayor Jim Smith assured her that no definite plans for the design of the youth center have been set yet and that serious consideration would be given to the installation of a skating rink.

After the group left the meeting, Councilman Stan Edwards indicated his doubts that the group of youngsters had come to the council meeting spontaneously. He felt that the demonstration had been instigated by someone who should have appeared himself to speak. He said he would like to know who it was.

(The News Review contacted Joseph O'Loughlin, local teacher who is well known for his recreation work with Greenbelt youngsters, and questioned him on this point. O'Loughlin admitted that the group had come to him concerned about the end of the skating program and asked what they could do about it. All he did, he said, was to suggest that they take the matter up with the city council.)

During the discussion the group, which ranged from about the age of 10 to about 16, was restrained and well-behaved for the most part and treated the matter seriously. They listened intently to what the council had to say and kept to the point at issue. The council generally was impressed with their behavior.

Teen Agers Learn Politics

One advantage of living in Greenbelt is that every citizen has an opportunity to participate in the city government by attending the twice-monthly meetings of the city councils. The five city councilmen are sincere in their desire to pass laws and make decisions which have the support of the community in general. However, the only way they can find out what the citizens think about general problems is when they are contacted personally or, more effectively, when citizens come to the council meetings and get up and speak their piece. The councilmen appreciate this—provided, of course, the visitors show they are responsible people, make their points clearly and concisely, and don't take up too much time in the usually long meetings. Groups of people who follow these tactics—which is elementary politics—usually win the sympathy of the council.

Actually, not many citizens have learned this technique, and it is rarely that more than a few people show up at a council meeting. The result is that decisions are sometimes made which might go the other way if citizens would bother to attend the meetings to present their viewpoint.

Our teenagers, however, have now given an excellent demonstration of just how to do this. On their first attempt at local politics last Monday night they scored a resounding success. They convinced the council with courteous and sound arguments that it was making a serious mistake in not bending every effort to persuade the county board of education that roller skating for Greenbelt youth is more important than possible further damage to the Center School gymnasium floor.

It was not that the teenagers were smoothly organized. In fact, they had neglected the essential task of choosing a spokesman for the group. Apparently no one had come prepared to speak. Fortunately, the contingent of girls (who were actually in the minority) instinctively chose there and then the right person for the job. Betsy Van Ormer, a 12-year-old who with good reason intends to become a lawyer, got up reluctantly at first and a bit giggle-shy, but then in a few words stated the case for skating clearly and with conviction.

This set the pattern for the discussion, and other teenagers (including Betsy again) spoke up, making their points concisely and intelligently. There were no "smart aleck" or audible crude remarks. Not once did the chair have to rap for order. The result was that the council showed their young visitors full respect without any condescension.

The performance was heartening from a couple of viewpoints. Where other teenagers in cities elsewhere are defying laws and rebelling violently, Greenbelt youngsters have shown they not only have respect for rules and orderly procedures but also have the maturity and judgment to follow them to gain their ends. Whether it is the Greenbelt environment or other intangible factors, we can be proud of the fact that our children are learning at a young age the real meaning of democracy and how it operates for the benefit of the majority.

Perhaps they can teach their elders a thing or two.

National Newspaper Week

This country has something of a mania for "weeks" and "days" celebrating all manner of things and occasions from the sublime to the ridiculous. But some of the observances are far above the common ruck, and deserve the public's interest and attention.

This is certainly the case with National Newspaper Week, October 1-8. Its theme is "Your Newspaper Guards Your Freedoms." And that's more than just a felicitous little slogan. It's a fact. A free press is the most potent weapon against tyranny and persecution that any nation can possess.

Dictators always take over the press as soon as they gain power and pervert it to their own ends. That's only logical. For dictatorship can't stand the freedom of expression and debate a free press stands solidly for.

GHI Employees Receive Medical Expense Plan

A new medical expense plan for employees of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. will go into effect Oct. 1, it was announced by GHI officials this week. An overwhelming majority of employees accepted the plan after being recommended by a 3-man committee consisting of Frank Lastner, Bruce Bowman, and Ralph Bartholomew and approved by the board of directors at their regular meeting on Aug. 28.

The new plan will provide hospital, surgical, and major medical expense benefits through Group Hospitalization, Inc. with the co-op proposing to bear 65 percent of the cost. At present, GHI makes no contribution to the group hospitalization and surgical benefits that are available to employees on a voluntary basis.

For a GHI employee without dependents, the monthly premium would come to $4.54, of which GHI would pay $2.95. For a family man, the monthly cost would be $13.16, of which GHI would pay $8.55. If all employees subscribe, it is estimated that the maximum cost to the corporation would be $5,685 per year.

Lastner stated that employees may subscribe for only part of the package, such as the hospital benefits, if they so desire. An interesting feature of the plan is a provision permitting board directors to enroll. Lastner said that group life insurance plans are being considered by his committee and that recommendations will be ready in a few weeks.

THE TOWN CARES

To the Editor:

There are a great many people who object to the noise caused by teenagers. "Can't they go someplace?" they moan. So when a town cares enough about its young people to try to build a recreation center for them, some of them are still howling about the racket. After all, what is a parade without noise and plenty of it? Besides, I don't think the dignity of labor was much affected. People who work with ringing telephones, exasperated voices, roaring machinery, rumbling buses, honking horns, clanging streetcars, and grinding gears are going to object to a little shouting, a few drums, and an opportunity to get the kids out of the house for an hour or two. And when the working man can't hold up his head with respect because someone set off a few firecrackers, let him look at the kids who are off the streets and street corners, growing into good, useful citizens because the people they look to for guidance were big enough to suffer the indignity of noise.

Baptist Sunday School

If you see a child, a young person, or an adult wearing a blue pin next week, chances are that they received the pin by attending the Sunday School of the Greenbelt Baptist Church. Waldo B. King announced last Sunday a new plan to increase Sunday School attendance. A blue pin will be given to every one who attends Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. on Sunday in the Center School. If a person maintains a perfect attendance record except for illness or attending Sunday School out of town, he will receive a bronze pin bearing a cross and crown symbol with the lettering "Baptist S. S." standing for Baptist Sunday School.

For perfect attendance for six months a red enameled gold plated pin with blue cross will be awarded. A blue enameled pin with silver plated lettering will be given for a nine months pin and a white and blue enameled gold pin with red cross will be awaiting those who attend for a year.

Families are welcome to attend the Sunday School this Sunday at 9:45 a.m. in the Center School. There is a class for every member of the family.

High Point High Points

By Marion Ryss

Again Greenbelt can be proud of its teenagers. This includes Betty Siegel of 104 Northway. She, Pat Gielen from Langley Park, and Judy Ingram from Hyattsville all students at High Point High School, took the Maryland State exam and placed high enough to win a $2,000, 4 year scholarship to any college in Md. We wish Betty, Pat, and Judy all the luck in the world and may they have very successful college careers.

As winter swings into its well-oiled hinges another school year begins. To get this year's activities off to a good start the High Point football team will play its first game of the season against Oxon Hill High School on Friday, Sept. 12, at Northwestern Stadium. Helping the team will be the High Point Cheerleaders, Band, and Majorettes, who all have snappy new routines which they will perform for you Friday night. All four of these groups have been practicing and rehearsing since the middle of Aug. We hope that this will prove to be one of the greatest games ever. Will you be there to see it?

Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Shabe, 1-C Northway, proudly announce the arrival of a daughter. Marion Louise made her debut on Aug. 14, weighing 5 lbs. 11½ oz. She joins one brother and two sisters.

The new telephone number of the William Kleins is JU. 9-1857. The Kleins now live in Silver Spring.

Linda Sue Risley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lakey, 44-T Ridge, is attending the Emmanuel Academy in Franklin Springs, Ga. Linda, age 13, will be entering the ninth grade.

Birthday greetings to Ann McCarthy, 13-T Ridge, who celebrated her eighth birthday.

A very happy birthday to Eric Greenbaum, who was two years old on Sept. 1.

We wish five years old Helen Warner, a get-well quick.

Something must be done! Everytime I dialed Mrs. Williams, (9363), Mrs. Sharpe, (at a different number) answered. So I explained my sad plight to the operator who assured me she'd get the number but, alas, once again Mrs. Sharpe answered instead of Mrs. Williams. Mrs. Sharpe, a very patient woman, volunteered to call Mrs. Williams for me. Sounds like a perfect solution but after Mrs. Sharpe dialed Mrs. Williams—all she received was a busy signal, and after placing the receiver on the hook, the telephone rang and Mrs. Sharpe found herself talking to herself. But Mrs. Sharpe wouldn't give up. She walked over to the Williams' home, only to discover Mrs. Williams was out of town. I'd like to take this opportunity to thank our good neighbor, Mrs. Sharpe—and, Mrs. Williams, if you read this column when you return, please call me. In the meantime, congratulations to your daughter who recently graduated from nursing school.

It's a girl for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Richardson, 15-Q Laurel. Sharon Michele was born on Aug. 27, weighing five and a half pounds. She has one brother and one sister.

Our condolences to Bearnard McDonnell, 2-J Northway, who lost his brother, James A. McDonnell, of Washington, D. C.

Birthday greetings to Allan Stickney, 20-M Hillside, who celebrated his tenth birthday.

Friends of Mrs. Harriett Wentworth, a former resident of Greenbelt, are invited to attend Open House in her honor at the apartment of Miss Cyrilla O'Connor, 9-D Parkway, Sunday, Sept. 14, 1 to 5 p.m.

Charles C. Barcus

U. S. Naval Academy Midshipman second class Charles C. Barcus, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Walsh Barcus of 2-T Gardenway, completed three weeks of air indoctrination Aug. 12 at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla. He is one of 800 Naval Academy juniors to spend a training period at the "Annapolis of the Air" this summer. Midshipmen were given 100 hours of indoctrination in the role of aviation as part of the Navy's fighting team, received 7.5 hours of flight time in a T-34 "prop" trainer, one hour in a jet and a flight in a helicopter.

John N. Sauls, son of Mrs. Anita Sauls, 59-D Ridge, has enrolled at Embry-Riddle Aeronautical Institute in Miami, Fla., for training as an airframe and powerplant technician. Sauls is a graduate of Northwestern High School in Hyattsville, and a veteran of four years' service as a mechanic in the Air Force. Upon completion of a 16-months course at Embry-Riddle, world's oldest aviation school, he will receive a CAA certificate qualifying him for commercial aviation employment as a maintenance and overhaul technician.

Erika Thimney Dance Group Starts New Year

Mrs. Eva Stuenkel of 19-L Ridge, new resident of Greenbelt and member of the Board of the Modern Dance Council of Washington, will speak briefly to the parents of children in the Greenbelt group at the initial meeting of the organization, Tuesday evening, Sept. 16, on the value of Modern Dance in the development of the child. The meeting will be at Center School, Home Ec. Room, at 8 p.m.

The committee in charge of program has arranged to have Mrs. Ruth Braunstein, member of the staff of the Erika Thimney Studios, as teacher in Greenbelt for the coming year. Parents of children 5 and older are invited to the meeting. Information regarding tuition and registration will be given at that time. Mrs. Stuenkel, herself a member of the Contemporary Dance Group of Washington, will also answer questions about the program of the group for the year.
